Outlook for 2020

As a result of uncertainty relating to the COVID-19 pandemic, Incap withdrew its outlook for 2020 on 24 March 2020. Incap has now updated its outlook for 2020:

Following the acquisition of AWS Electronics Group in January 2020, Incap estimates the revenue for 2020 to be significantly higher than in 2019. Considering the impact from the acquisition of AWS Electronics Group, the one-time integration and transaction costs, the PPA amortization, as well as the pandemic related factory closure, the operating profit (EBIT) is estimated to be approximately on the same level as in 2019.

The estimates and forecasts contain significant uncertainty related to the COVID-19 pandemic. The estimates are given provided that there are no major changes in currency exchange rates or in component availability and they are based both on Incap's customers' forecasts and the company's own assessments of the business development.

Incap Group's CEO Otto Pukk:

As expected the COVID-19 pandemic had a negative impact on our operations in the second quarter of the year. Due to the lockdown and the factory close in India, our revenue decreased organically. However, I am satisfied that in the difficult circumstances the demand for our services continued on a good level and we managed to ramp up the operations at the Indian factory quickly after the lockdown was lifted. Despite our personnel working extra shifts to catch up with the backlog, part of the deliveries were delayed to the third quarter of the year.

Due to the pandemic and the related restrictions, our factory in the UK operated with somewhat reduced capacity during the second quarter. Our factory in Slovakia suffered from the decline in the automotive sector while our factory in Estonia has been operating in the second quarter almost normally. Excluding the effect from the AWS Electronics Group acquisition related purchase price allocation amortisations, our profitability continued on a good level, despite the negative impact from the closure of the factory in India and other pandemic related effects.

The overall demand for our services has continued on a good level, although the pandemic has put pressure on some customer segments. Especially the automotive sector was affected by the pandemic, but has since then started to slowly recover. We have been successful in new customer acquisition this year and have seen high activity among customers in Europe with a good number of requests for quotations. As a result of the pandemic, many customers are reviewing their manufacturing arrangements and we can see more interest moving manufacturing closer to the home markets and R&D activities. Despite the challenges caused by the pandemic for the global supply chain, we have managed to find solutions to secure the availability of components and ensure the smoothness of the logistics.

Following the AWS acquisition in January this year, the number of customers has increased significantly. Our four biggest customers contributed to 50.8% of revenue in the first half of 2020, while in 2019 their share was 80.6%. With this change, we can see also that the customer base is more balanced and the variations in the activity of different customers compensate each other well and smooth out our business.

After the acquisition and throughout the pandemic, we have focused on securing the business and serving customers well. Considering the circumstances, the business is developing well at the acquired units in UK and Slovakia. Integration of the acquired units continued according to plan during the second quarter, despite the COVID-19 pandemic. Our main focus in the integration has been on capturing synergies in cross-selling and sourcing.

The investment in new manufacturing capacity in India is also back on track after the slowdown caused by the pandemic and the lockdown. We expect the factory expansion to be finalised still this year.

My warmest thanks under these unusual times goes to our personnel who has shown great resilience and flexibility. We have taken very strict measures to protect our personnel from the spread of the virus and this has required special efforts from all our employees. It has been a tough time and uncertainty relating to recovery from the COVID-19 pandemic still remains high. However, following the AWS acquisition, we expect our revenue for 2020 to be significantly higher than in 2019. Considering the impact from the acquisition of AWS Electronics Group, the one-time integration and transaction costs, the PPA amortization, as well as the pandemic related factory closure, our operating profit (EBIT) is estimated to be approximately on the same level as in 2019.

Business environment

The overall demand and market activity in the Electronics Manufacturing Services industry has continued on a good level despite the COVID-19 pandemic and its negative impact on certain industries and customer segments, such as the automotive industry. Due to the pandemic and measures taken to contain it, there has been some challenges in the operating environment. The lockdowns introduced resulted in the closure of the factory in India as well as a partial closure of the factory in the UK. The lockdowns and travel restrictions have challenged the global supply chains. However, Incap has not experienced major interruptions in component availability and logistics.

The impact of the pandemic on Incap's operating environment started to decrease towards the end of the first half of the year, as the lockdowns were lifted and travel restrictions were relaxed. The demand in the automotive industry also started to stabilize towards the end of the period.

In the electronics manufacturing services (EMS) industry, customers continue to be very price-conscious and expect that their manufacturing partners increase efficiency continuously and stay competitive. In the first half of the year, there were no major changes in the cost level of the components or price pressure.

In the longer term, the growth in electronics manufacturing services is driven by the growing use of electronics supported with megatrends such as digitalization. The transition to Industry 4.0 and 5G technologies and the growing environmental technology sector will offer new market opportunities for the EMS industry. The EMS industry is highly fragmented and offers potential for consolidation.

Short-term risks and uncertainties

General risks related to the company's business operations and sector include the development of customer demand, price competition in contract manufacturing, success in new customer acquisition, availability and price development of raw materials and components, sufficiency of funding, liquidity and exchange rate fluctuations.

COVID-19 risks

Development of the COVID-19 pandemic and measures taken to contain it may have a negative impact on Incap's performance in the short-term. The lock-downs in countries where Incap operates have been lifted and Incap's factories are fully operational with strict safety measures followed to protect the safety and health of the personnel. However, as the circumstances may change rapidly with the pandemic, there may still present a short-term risk on Incap's business activities through the general economic development and development in different industries the company's customers operate in, the supply chain and logistics as well as the health and availability of the personnel.

Customer risks

Demand for Incap's services and the company's financial position are affected by global economic trends and the fluctuation among customer industries. The risks connected with the customer demand and the solvency of customers are monitored and evaluated separately for each customer. The management considers the customer relationship management to be of utmost importance and is paying special attention to it.

The company's sales is spread over several customer segments balancing out the impact of the economic fluctuation in different industrial sectors. Four biggest customers contributed to 50.8% (80.6%) of revenue in January–June 2020. Out of the total revenue in first half of 2020, 11 customers (7) exceeded EUR 1 million revenue.

Electronics manufacturing services is a highly competitive industry, with continuous pressure on cost level management. Incap has succeeded in increasing the efficiency of its operations and managing the costs.

Financial risks

The financial position of the company is good and the sufficiency of financing and working capital does not pose significant risk. The company did not record any credit losses in the first half of 2020.

The value of the shares in subsidiaries in the parent group has a significant impact on the parent company's equity and therefore on, for example, equity ratio. Based on the impairment calculations in connection with the financial statements for 2019 there is no need for any write-down of the value of the shares in subsidiaries.

The main currencies used in InCap's operations are Indian Rupee, British Pound and US Dollar. The changes in the exchange rates between the currencies and the Euro may have a negative impact on InCap's revenue, result and financial position.

In tax audit conducted by Indian tax authorities in 2018 regarding financial period 2015-2016, the deductibility of group costs is being investigated. The Group has recorded a provision of EUR 0.5 million in 2018 and based on a new evaluation the Group has made in 2019, an additional EUR 1.2 million provision was booked in accordance with IFRIC 23 (evaluation of uncertain tax positions). The case is still under preliminary investigation and if an agreement cannot be settled with a local tax authority, the company will take the matter to the next level of authority.

Strategy

The future growth of InCap builds on the entrepreneurial, agile and customer driven culture of its employees, flexible operational model as well the deeply engrained cost management mindset. InCap wants to drive consolidation in the industry to benefit from the industry growth potential and to maintain its cost efficiency and long-term profitability in a sustainable way. To continue the strong track record, InCap focuses on three key strategic cornerstones: growth, profitability and operational excellence.

Growth is driven by the growing use of electronics and global trends in outsourcing. Maintaining InCap's unique and efficient business model is a key element of the strategy and helps reaching profitability targets. InCap's investments in operational excellence include high quality technology and the know-how of InCap's employees. Decentralized way of working motivates personnel and brings value to InCap's customers.
